Among those who have done this there is now a desire to withdraw the indorseme which they have given to those appointed under the republican administration. It has been learned that every person who has been so recommended by them is charged against their account on what is known as the patron-age list. They have been informed by cabinet officers that it is impossible to keep republicans in office and put democrats in at the same time. The result has been that Senators and Representatives are withdrawing their indorsements of these of the resolution to the committee on privileges drawing their indorsements of these hold-overs in order that they may increase the resolution printed and laid on the table, as he wished to make some observations upon it. Capt. R. I. Whittieton, the special agent of the seed division of the Agricultural Department, has tendered his resignation to take effect on the 31st instant.

W. H. Joslin, the assistant curstor of the department, has resigned.

The communication was referred to Gen. Thos. L. Casey, chief of engineers, and was returned by him with the following indorsement:

The location which the company desires the Secretary to approve is about four hun tred feet above the Aqueduct bridge and about 2,200 feet keller. duct bridge and about 2,200 feet below 'The Three Sisters.' The charter granted the company by Congress does not authorize the con-struction of a bridge at this locality."

DON'T AGREE WITH CASEY. Assistant Secretary Grant and Acting Judge Advocate General Lieber gave opinions on the subject, in which they agreed that the location

Three Sisters" was next referred to the Attorney General. He replied in substance:

"The words 'at or near' are not, when used in such a connection, words of a definite location. They are relative and the requirements of the statute will be satisfied if, all circumstances considered, the bridge is located as near to the point indicated as is practicable. In other words, a wide discretion is conferred upon a road when it is authorized to locate its terminus or a bridge 'at or near' a given point. * * If in your opinion the place designated by the company is under all circustances a reasonable compliance with the terms of the act you (the Secretary of War) are advised that you have Discharges in the Treasury.—It was found necessary yesterday to drop fifteen instead of ten money counters in the treasurer's office. The correspondence closes with a letter written by Secretary Lamont vesterday to President King, which is as follows:

"In reply to your communication of February 14 in reference to the location of your bridge across the Potomac, I have to say that as at present advised, I see no reason why the bridge should not be located 'approximately upon the line of 37th street, it being understood that 37th street is at or near the western terminus of M street. You, of course, understand that no definite or final action can be had until you submit for approval the plans of your bridge."

A few days ago his wife left him on account of his drunkenness and abuse, and taking the baby went to Hiteman to stay with her sister, Mrs Harry Smith. Frazier came to Albia Tuesday and went to Hiteman yesterday morning. After finding the residence of Smith he walked in and plunged a knife in his wife's heart, struck his sister-in-law in the breast, killing her almost instantly, and then proceeded to cut off the leg of his baby. Neighbors heard the disturbance and in-stantly gave pursuit to Frazier, who had made for the woods. After about two hours exciting chase by nearly all the citizens of the town he was caught and turned over to a deputy sheriff and posse, who undertook to bring him to this place.
